Dear Judge Maas:

We write respectfully to request a two-week extension, until August 14, 2008, of defendants' time to complete their hard-copy production of documents responsive to plaintiffs' document requests. The current deadline, under the Court's July 17 oral and written orders, is today, July 31. By the end of today, defendants will produce approximately 3000 pages of documents, the universe we were aware of and committed to producing, by today's deadline, at the July 17 conference.

The reason for this request is that we have recently learned of the existence of additional documents that appear to be responsive to plaintiffs' requests. These documents must be reviewed both by ICE and this Office, a process we have begun but have been unable to complete. Accordingly, we request an extension until August 14, the date of the next conference before Your Honor, to produce to plaintiffs these additional documents.

Thank you for your consideration of this request.

Honorable Frank Maas
